Further information

Make good to all disturbed areas to allow for new adaptations.

The contractor should visit the site by appointment with the client and become familiar with all aspects of the proposed adaptations prior to tendering. No additional costs relating to the scheduled works will be considered following submission of the tender.

This clause does not affect reasonable unforeseeable additional works that may become apparent as works proceed, i.e. those that could not reasonably have been identified prior to tendering.

Where such unforeseen works are identified they should be immediately brought to my attention along with photo evidence and estimate(s) on headed paper via e-mail to enable an informed decision to be made in good time to prevent unnecessary delays.
